MILLIONAIRE POST

In 1854, he engaged in the hardware and other lines of business there until 1884, when his health broke down. He traveled extensively in search of treatments for his ailment, spending nearly $1,000 a year for health. Most responsible, it is said, for his investigation into the health food subject and when his health had been regained he turned all of his attention to that line of endeavor, employing thousands of workmen. Mr. Post took an active part in local affairs. In 1894, he was made president of the National Citizens' Industrial Association of America and for several years he attracted wide attention because of his attacks against labor unions.

He was an ardent supporter of the temperance cause.

Mr. Post traveled abroad a large part of the time during recent years and his art collection in this city is regarded as one of the most valuable in the country.

Parents of For Worth.

For Worth, Tex., May 9. C. W. Post and wife, son, daughter and his brother reside in Fort Worth. His recent illness and trip by special train to Rochester, Minn., was kept from his mother because of her advanced years and feeble condition. Post resided in Fort Worth before moving to Battle Creek, Mich.

At one time he owned a grocery store here.

LINING 'EM OUT

Connie Mack has released Baker to the Reading Tri-State team.

As a shock-absorber, we will have to state that this Baker is a pitcher.

Jack Barry, the Athletics' shortstop will be out of the game for at least two weeks longer as a result of the sprain he received during the recent Washington series.

This season Barry started to put an emphasis on a peculiarity of his that is, hitting when men are on bases. His past hitting averages have never given the true idea of his value as a hitter. His slams usually came when there was a fellow-Mackman to be belted around. He seems to be keyed up to hit whenever the situation takes on the aspect of a pinch. This season he started hitting savagely in pinches.

Veteran American League pitchers have learned that with a man on second or third, especially if the game is tight, it is as bad to have Barry up as Baker.

Up to one day last week Harry Hooper of the Boston Red Sox had been hitting in tough luck. On that day he received a telegram from his home in California that a new son had just arrived there. He celebrated the event by hitting the ball for two singles and a triple, besides scoring three runs. He now expects to bat .300 right along because of the heir.

John J. Lannin, the new president of the Red Sox, has added his voice to the general wall against leaving the south too soon in the spring. He says that next season he will remain on the torrid side of the Mason and Dixie line as long as possible.

The crab is a theorist," said one of the players who worked under Evers last year.

Evers, inside-baseball himself, is out of the management last season. With runners hugging his steps, he had the batters picking off first, second, third or fourth to pitch according to the workings of his own mind. Oftentimes the bunch was good. But on as many occasions it fizzled.

The case of Evers is unusually interesting. Though regarded as a baseball tactician second to Mack, possibly, ball players in general will tell you that the crab will never attain success in a managerial capacity.

The explanation in effect is that he is temperamentally unfit, too high strung and too prone to caustic and crushing criticism.

"Heine" Wagner, the Red Sox shortstop, is out of baseball for good.

Wagner has been suffering from rheumatism in his right arm. This was placed in a plaster cast, which was removed the other day, but he was still unable to use it and it has given up hope of regaining his playing form.

Whatever the world tour may have done for the other players, Walter Leverenz, the St. Louis Brown's southpaw, certainly has been brought off his stride. Leverenz reported after the tour with his arm in poor shape. He has not been able to get in condition and Rickey does not believe he will be able to use it for two weeks.

On the complexities of the dogs this should be the year for Cleveland to run away with the pennant. Heretofore they have started off like a Syrobo, only to flish like a truck horse. Having gotten away at an opposite pace they should not cause trouble. The Naps are always a high-grade bet in the art of doing exactly what you don't figure they will—or not doing what you figure is a cinch.

Five years ago Frek Clarke was tagged to quit and now he's leading the Pirates for the fifteenth year.

The O. R. E. baseball team will play the Santa Fe Doves at Traction Park tomorrow afternoon, the game to start at 2 o'clock.

COLORADO COLLEGE BEATS STATE FARMERS

By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 9.—By a score of 81 to 46 Colorado College defeated the State Agricultural college in the dual track and field meet at Washburn field this morning. The Tigers were never hard pressed and won first in every event except the 220-yard dash, in which the Indians were beaten.

Mack Davis, intercollegiate high jump champion, and Covert tied in the high jump at 5 feet 4½ inches. Both are members of the Tigers team they split the points and did not jump off the tie.

Davis was the individual star of the meet winner first in the pole vault and discus tying for first in the high jump, taking second in the shot put.

INITIAL CREW REGATTA IS ON TODAY

Three Universities Represented this Afternoon by Varsity Eights on Carnegie Lake at Princeton.

New York, May 9.—The initial regatta of the eastern rowing season was held on Carnegie Lake at Princeton this afternoon with three universities represented by varsity eights. The entrants in this triangular regatta are Pennsylvania, Columbia and Princeton. With the Quaker crew, coached by Vivian Niehans, the former Oxford university student, favorite on the strength of showing twice since the University Naval Academy eight several weeks ago. The course which is approximately 1.5 miles in length is such that all three crews will have an equal chance and for that reason the race will be an excellent test of the progress made by the oarsmen of the three institutions during the past winter.

The Pennsylvania crew will have the advantage which comes from having rowed and won a race this season. On April 14 the Quakers journeyed to Annapolis and defeated the Middle in a 1.5-mile race by two lengths. The time of the winning crew was 8 minutes, 42 seconds, which exceeded the previous record.

Both Columbia and Princeton will face Pennsylvania with crews well advanced in training but lacking the confidence and dash which comes with past successes in the race this year. Princeton's combination has been rowing together for sometime and is said to be one of the best that has been developed at Princeton since the revival of rowing several years ago.

A new trial in the case of Francisco Lucre y Montoya, against the Royal Insurance company, was denied by Judge Reynolds today. Montoya got a verdict of $5,200 from a jury, under a policy covering wool stored in barn. Judge Reynolds, counsel for the insurance company, announced their intention of appealing the case to the supreme court. Nicholas Chavez was given a verdict by default against Francisco Chavez for $333.

WAITED TOO LONG BEFORE CASHING THEIR CHECK

Gross, Kelly & Co. Must Give Back Thousands Because Man Died Before They Got to Bank

Milton Dow, as administrator of the effects of M. B. Atkinson & Sons, was awarded a verdict for $3,181 against Gross, Kelly & Co., a corporation in the district court today. The defendants, through their attorney, gave notice of appeal.

It appears from review of the facts in the case that Atkinson & Sons were indebted to Gross, Kelly & Co., and that M. B. Atkinson gave them a check for $3,000. Next day Atkinson died, and the defendants, ignorant of that fact, cashed the check four days later. In order to get the check back, Gross, Kelly & Co. got a chattel mortgage covering property worth $182, and foreclosed under it. The administrator demanded the return of the cash and goods, which he held belonged to the estate, and on the defendants' refusal to surrender money or goods, brought suit. Marion & Wood were the plaintiff's counsel.

The Pennsylvania crew will have the advantage which comes from having rowed and won a race this season.
